ROBBERS' TRINKETS SOLD

Relatives of E. C. Reynolds, Shot by Police, Heavy Bidders.

REVOLVER GOES TO BROTHER

He Also Hides in Highwayman's Gold Watch and Sisters and Mother Come Into Possession of the Trinkets.

Sisters and mother of Edgar C. Reynolds, crackman, burglar and highwayman, still grieving over the loss of the wayward son and brother, who was shot to death by police officers last January, gave their small savings yesterday to purchase cheap jewelry that belonged to him.
The jewelry and other property found upon Reynolds' person after his death were sold at public auction in a room in the county building by Murdoch G. Macleod, administrator of the robber's estate.
The automatic pistol, a fine polished blue steel engine of death, was sold to Ralph L. Reynolds, the 15-year-old brother of the highwayman, for $15. The boy also purchased his dead brother's gold watch, paying $10 for it.
Doubtless that pistol struck terror to many a heart when the steady hand of the robber, elbow at side, trained it upon the wayfarer and his eyes, cold and blue as the cold blue of the steel, gave an additional menace to the command "Hands up."
Probably most of the jewelry sold by the administrator was torn from men and women while they looked into that cold barrel of steel.
The property was appraised at $272. It was believed to be worth much more than that. The sale realized but $175.50.
Sheriff McShane made the largest purchase, giving $76 for a pair of diamond earrings.
Julius W. Reynolds, the aged father of the highwayman, was the only relative not present. He is at the county hospital and was too feeble to go to town. Yet when the grand jury was in session last spring he was not too feeble to go before the inquisitors and seek indictment of the police officers who fatally shot his boy in a running fight. He said he wanted justice for his son, no matter if he was good or bad.
Mrs. H. D. Tyson, Reynolds' mother; H. D. Tyson, his stepfather; his brother Ralph and his two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Holman and Miss Esther B. Reynolds, remained through the entire sale. All live at 3923 North Twenty-second street.
Mr. Tyson did most of the purchasing for the mother and sisters. He bought jeweled stickpins and rings, a bracelet, a gold cross and chain and other articles, for which there was little bidding. The amounts paid for these ranged from 25 cents to $5. Other bidders bought diamond cuff buttons for $10, a diamond and pearl brooch for $15, a revolver for $9.
Sheriff McShane entered the room just as Administrator Macleod "put up" the diamond earrings. The sheriff said nothing until $75 was bid. For several instants it appeared the jewelry would go at that figure, when McShane leaned forward and bid $76. No one would bid higher.
The sheriff opened his wallet, extracted four yellow-backed $20 gold certificates and threw them down before the cashier.
"Where did you make the raise?" asked some one who thought he was a humorist.

HUMMEL'S HOUSE DOG

FINDS STOLEN HANDBAG

Park Commissioner Hummel has incurred the displeasure of the street commissioner and is under the surveillance of police. Hummel protests his innocence and has finally transferred the dilemma largely to his dog, which he declares has been in the habit of wandering about over the city and swiping divers packages and bringing them home.
Hummel's trouble began Wednesday night, when Mrs. Patrick Swift, 1716 Burt had a thief grab her handbag containing $800 worth of jewelry.
This morning that identical handbag was found in Mr. Hummel's front yard.
It was not a very valuable article and so he picked it up, looked at it, found it empty and tossed it into the street.
When he arrived at his office he saw a story in The Bee to the effect that such a handbag had been lost. He reported to the police and the street commissioner.
The former has set detectives to watch Hummel's dog and the street commissioner has issued a warning that no more rubbish must be found in the street in front of the park commissioner's house.
Hummel maintains that this time his dog is innocent and that the robber must have maliciously cast the bag into the official's front yard.

PIONEER WOMAN DIES

AT THE HOME OF HER SON

Mrs. Jeannette K. Chambers, 82 years old, mother of the deputy city controller, W. F. Chambers, died yesterday at the home of her son, 1822 Evans street.
She had been ill for a long time. She leaves three sons—W. F. of this city, W.
L. of Davenport, Ia., and Frank Chambers. Two daughters are living—Mrs. S.
P. Jones of Hot Springs, S. D., and Mrs.
John Witham of this city.
Mrs. Chambers came to Omaha in 1871.
She was the widow of the late Major William J. Chambers, who was purchasing agent for the Department of the Missouri. Funeral services will be held from the home of W. F. Chambers Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.
An article that has real merit should in time become popular. That such is the case with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been attested by many dealers. Here is one of them. H. W. Hendrickson, Ohio Falls, Ind., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for coughs, colds and croup and is my best seller."
For sale by all dealers—Advertisement.

HORSES SELL FOR MORE

THAN THEY DID YEAR AGO

"Yes, the mysterious horse disease has entirely stopped its ravages in Nebraska and I suppose everywhere else," said Daniel Chessman of Harlan county, "but it certainly made a horse market for us in this state. I watched some of the horses sell in South Omaha the other day, and I compared prices with those I saw last fall. I believe good horses on the average are selling $20 per head higher than they did at that time. It looks as though a man could make some good money buying a load of thin horses this fall and feeding them through the winter for the market in the spring when the horses are in great demand for the spring work. Hay will not be so high this winter as it was last winter, and corn I am sure will not go quite so high."

COMMISSIONERS BEGIN

COURT HOUSE INSPECTION

The Board of County Commissioners completed inspection of the new county building yesterday. The members said they would begin negotiations for financial settlement with Caldwell & Drake, county building general contractors, in the afternoon. The board decided to make one final inspection of the jail within the next few days. Then negotiations for settlement with the Pally Jail Building company, jail contractor, will be begun.
The board has inspected the jail about a dozen times and still seems unable to reach any decision as to whether it is satisfactory or not.
